HONOLULU MEN JAILED AT JAPANESE STATION

MEXICAN PEACE PLAN HAS FAILED

Naval Station Pictures Cause Their Arrest

Alfred C. B. Fletcher and J. A. Richardson, well known in this city, have been languishing in a Japanese jail in punishment for taking pictures while entering one of the naval station harbors of Japan.

Fletcher and Richardson were residents of Honolulu for a number of months. Fletcher was a teacher at Iolani College and Richardson at the Mills Institute.

Later they became inspectors on the Pearl Harbor dredging work. Having amassed enough money to carry their part way around the world they set out on their journey on the steamship Asia that left here last March.

They wrote letters to their friends in the city and one from Fletcher is given as follows:

"Kyoto, Japan, April 17, 1911.
"Dear Mr. ———: I have just returned from the beautiful Cherry Hospital, where I saw Dr. Kobayashi and gave him the two books. He was glad to see me, coming so recently from Honolulu, and spent an hour showing Richardson and me around the Toji Temple, with which his hospital is connected. The hospital consists of four or five buildings of Japanese style and has accommodations for about thirty patients. In addition to these there have been about forty day patients during the winter and one hundred during the summer, who come daily for treatment. He has three resident doctors on his staff, besides six nurses and several others. From this you can see that he is a very busy man, and I appreciated very much the hour he devoted in conducting us around the temple.

"Rich and I are still together and are enjoying our trip very much. We have visited Yokohama, Kamakura, Tokio, Nikko, Nagoya, and have been in Kyoto—the flower of them all—about a week. Most of the cities show the effects of foreign influences. Kyoto happily has retained much of the old Japanese, and for this reason is the most interesting. At present there is a celebration taking place in commemoration of the 70th anniversary of the founding of the Jodo sect of Buddhism, and the city streets are crowded with people from the outlying districts. Castles and temples are to be found at every turn, and we are getting somewhat tired of them. They are all very much alike.

"We expect to be in Japan about a week longer, making Kyoto our headquarters and taking in Osaka, Nara and Kobe. We are planning a walking trip of four days in the country off the beaten path, and I think it should be interesting and a good experience. From Japan we plan to go to Korea on our way to Peking, thence to Shanghai, Hongkong, Canton, etc.

"Rich joins me in sending best regards and good wishes to all at Watertown. We are out of a job, but we work hard. We are tired at night. Traveling is hard graft. Yours sincerely,

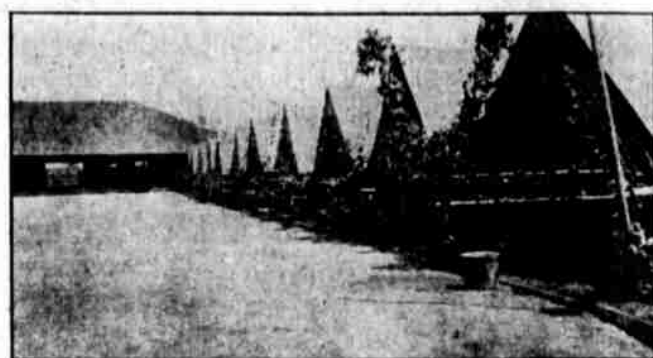

"ALFRED C. B. FLETCHER."
Later, however, they fell into the hands of the authorities and became subjects for diplomatic correspondence.

The account of their doings is told in the Chronicle of the 26th ult.

Military Camp Model For "Clean-Up Day" How Marines Set Example For Honolulu

Wall Tents, with Flowers Growing in Front — Permanent Homes of Uncle Sam's Sea-Soldiers in Honolulu.

Honolulu has a permanent object-lesson in cleanliness in the various military quarters scattered in and about the city.

The United States military authorities are developing into great sanitation experts. It was Uncle Sam that cleaned up the Panama Canal Zone and drove out the dreaded yellow fever. And Uncle Sam's men in Hawaii are carrying on a vigorous campaign all the time for health and cleanliness. Camp Verry, a description of which is given herewith, is a splendid example of what may be done along sanitary lines, and the example is worth something to Honolulu just now, when the city and territory are combining in a "clean-up" campaign.

Every day is "clean-up" day at Camp Verry.

Cleanliness above all things is the motto at Camp Verry, Honolulu, where the detachment of Marines stationed in Hawaii are quartered, and although the men live wholly in tents the camp has an air of permanence about it and a homelike atmosphere that would be hard to duplicate.

Major W. C. Neville is in charge of the Marines here, and he has worked hard for many months to bring the camp up to its present state of perfection.

Clean and Homelike.

The company streets are so clean that one could sit down in them without danger of becoming soiled, and around the tents of the non-commissioned officers and enlisted men flowers, small trees and climbing vines have been planted that give the otherwise dreary looking brown tents an air of beauty and a homelike atmosphere.

To a stranger among soldiers the neatness, the clean quarters, the care taken to make the enlisted men comfortable and happy are a revelation.

Making Tour.

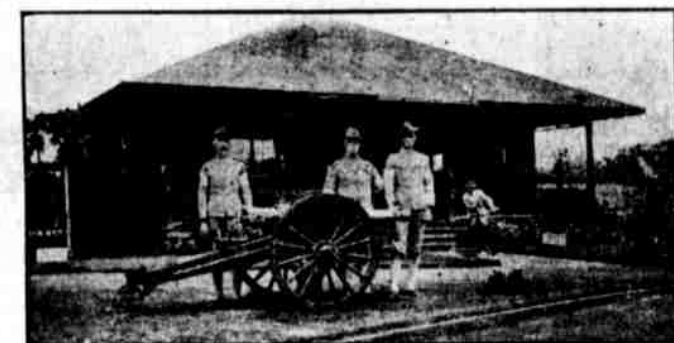

In company with Major Neville a Bulletin representative made a trip around the camp one day this week, and although the reporter has seen many camps of the United States army, he has never seen any that could surpass the quarters of these Marines at Camp Verry.

The sea-soldiers are well taken care of, they have their own reading and billiard rooms and at the post exchange, formerly called the canteen, they can buy almost anything the heart of man could wish.

After looking at a few of the tents and getting a general idea of the camp, Major Neville led the way to the recreation room of the men.

For Recreation.

This is a long building in one end of which are three billiard and pool tables, tables for card games, an upright piano and a Victor talking machine.

In the other end are two long tables holding files of the principal magazines and illustrated weeklies of the United States, and against the wall book-cases containing a large number of up-to-date fiction.

Can Buy Much.

Then there is the post exchange.

FAIRCHILD WOULD NOT SUCCEED FREAR

Refused Request of Kuhio and Legislators to Be Candidate.

A determined effort made by Delegate Kuhio and a number of members of the last legislature to prevail upon Senator Fairchild of Kauai to become a candidate for the governorship, did not meet with success, producing only an emphatic assertion from Fairchild that he would not become Governor of the Territory if the place were offered to him.

The approaching end to Governor Frear's term had aroused a number of people and a number of interests to considerable preliminary activity. Fairchild's leadership in the Senate and the ability that he has displayed in dealing with the financial problems of the government made him a sort of "logical candidate" and it was with this idea in mind that he was asked to become a candidate by both Kuhio and a number of legislative members. But the Senator from Kauai refused without qualification and one possible successor to Governor Frear has been eliminated from the race.

Those opposed to the reappointment of Governor Frear are busy casting about for an available man. Delegate Kuhio makes no secret of the fact that he does not want to see Governor Frear reappointed but so far he has advanced the name of no one aside from the attempt made to convince Fairchild that he ought to take a vacation from managing a plantation and serve a term of four years at the Capitol.

MISS LIST SELLS

Plucky Girl Will Continue Her Travels Around the World.

For the last time Miss Orville List, the Oklahoma news girl, will sell the Evening Bulletin on the streets of Honolulu today, and this is the last chance of the public to buy a paper from this girl full of grit who is working her way around the world by selling newspapers, devoting herself to the sale of daily papers in the cities through which she has passed.

Appreciate Patronage.

"I appreciate very much the patronage the residents of Honolulu have given me while I have been selling the Evening Bulletin in this city, and as this is the last day I shall be a news girl here I wish to take this opportunity to thank them for that patronage," said Miss List this morning in speaking of her week's experiences.

Miss List had a good day yesterday, and as this afternoon is the last time she will be seen on the streets of Honolulu in the capacity of news girl, the public patronage should be more than on any previous day since she began her campaign.

Sweet Town.
The Bulletin and Miss List have swept the town during this week, and her presence on the downtown streets with her bundle of Bulletins will be missed by the customers who have come to look upon her regularly every afternoon for their daily paper.

Miss List has sold Bulletins from an automobile, from horseback and on foot in Honolulu, and she is equally at home in either position while inducing the public to purchase the paper.

Sales Satisfactory.

From a sales standpoint both Miss List and the Evening Bulletin are satisfied with the result of the

LAST BULLETINS

Smuggler Caught Fast

On a secret indictment returned by the local United States grand jury, C. A. Snyder, a mining man, has been arrested at San Francisco by the United States authorities, the charge being the smuggling of opium into Hawaii.

Snyder was a guest at the Young Hotel while in the city, and it is believed that he was the organizer of a system by which large quantities of the contraband drug would be brought to the islands on liners of the Pacific Mail company. His departure on the Manchuria is understood to have been hastened by the arrest of Howard and Henry, the two members of the Manchuria's crew taken into custody for smuggling of the drug.

Howard pleaded guilty to an indictment and a postponement of sentence was granted him in the United States Court this morning, it being understood that information he gave to the authorities resulted in the indictment and arrest of Snyder.

United States District Attorney Breckens states that Snyder is a man of some wealth. His movements while in Honolulu have been traced, and it is believed that the evidence involving him in the work of opium smuggling is exceptionally strong.

PRINCIPAL TUCKER DENIES LEGISLATORS CHARGES AND ASKS FOR INVESTIGATION

Principal Tucker of the Boys' Industrial School has asked the Department of Public Instruction for an investigation into the severe criticisms that were leveled at his management of the institution by the members of the Legislature who visited the school during the late session.

Mr. Tucker denies emphatically the truth of the findings made by the legislative committee. In this respect he is practically supported in a statement by Superintendent Pope.

"Many of the statements made by the boys at the school to members of the Legislature were palpably untrue," says Mr. Pope. "The difficulties with an administration of an industrial school are naturally great, and I have made every effort to acquaint myself with the conditions prevailing at the industrial school. Several of the boys who heard statements made to the legislators declare them to be untrue."

No action has been taken on Tucker's request for an investigation, the members of the commission of public instruction believing that they have earned a rest from investigations by virtue of the Hilo High School troubles.

shows no evidence of having been visited by poaching parties.

The building are in fair condition, and some repairs have been made by the Thetis party in order to make the life of the four scientists more comfortable.

The Thetis was ten days making port, calling at Midway on the way home.

MRS. STODART, wife of the former manager of McFryde plantation, is reported by the Queen's Hospital authorities to be better today than yesterday. Mrs. Stodart was taken ill on Kauai and brought to Honolulu last week by a special trip of the Hilonian.

A little party of scientific men are maintaining a lonely vigil on Laysan Island, and will await the return of the United States revenue cutter Thetis to bring them back to Honolulu.

The Thetis arrived at the port this morning. Professor William A. Bryan of the College of Hawaii, who accompanied the party to the island, but did not remain there, states that Laysan Island is at present overrun with rabbits of nondescript origin. Birds are again plentiful. The island

MRS. COMPTON'S ALLEGED LETTER WRITING FIGURES IN U. S. GRAND JURY HEARING

With five witnesses from Hilo and one from Maui the United States Grand Jury resumed its investigation into the Hilo High school charges this morning, the alleged writing of a letter by Mrs. Compton figuring in the proceedings. On this point William Field, the proprietor of the Maui Hotel was called as a witness, it being stated that he saw the letter said to have been written by Mrs. Compton in which she is alleged to have referred to some "Tom" in particularly endearing terms.

Field stated that he remembered something of the letter incident but that his recollection as to what was contained in the missive was not at all clear. The statement was made that Mrs. Compton had started to write the letter and had then left it on the hotel writing table, forgetting to take it with her.

Other witnesses subpoenaed to appear before the Grand Jury this morning to throw some additional light on the Hilo High school charges were L. S. Connors, William Campbell, Miss Vannatta and a Japanese girl.

The Grand Jury is expected to report on the case early next week.
